Chart-topping British singer-songwriter Maisie Peters has returned, unveiling two brand new singles - 'You You You' and 'Audrey Hepburn' - out now via Gingerbread Man Records/Atlantic Records. Listen HERE.

The singles land as Maisie's first new music since headlining Wembley Arena, opening The Eras Tour, and becoming the youngest solo British female artist in almost a decade to bag a debut UK No.1 album ('The Good Witch') back in 2023.

Signalling the next chapter of Maisie's already storied young career, 'You You You' and 'Audrey Hepburn' offer a first glimpse into the world of her much-anticipated, soon-to-be-announced and third studio album.

"Audrey Hepburn is a song that for me defines this album, and my life in recent times", Maisie explains. "It's about how love gave me an inner peace, calm, strength and confidence, a safe place and an escape from the mania of my life in the last few years. You You You is about the darkest trench of my last heartbreak, a song I wrote very much in retrospect, thinking about how consumed I was by that sadness, something I could have only seen truly in hindsight. I wrote You You You in the beginning stages of the truest love of my life so far (the Audrey love) so these songs, whilst tonally are so different, feel so connected in so many ways. Neither could have existed without the other, so I'm so glad everyone is getting to experience them at the same time."

To mark her comeback, Maisie will take the stage for intimate shows at Earth Hackney in London this week, followed by Music Hall of Williamsburg in New York next Wednesday, October 15th. Announced just last week, the performances sold out immediately.

Stay tuned for more Maisie news over the coming weeks, and see below credits for 'You You You' and 'Audrey Hepburn'.
